I suggest that the first step in improving EMS Response is for those involved to get the same understanding of the current facts about this issue.

To help with that process, I have placed what I think are the key facts on a webpage at this link:

<https://oaklandtownshipsentinel.com/fire-department-reports/ems-response-time-improvement-project/>

If others have differing or additional information, I will post it there with an explanation. Then we could meet and reconcile any differences and arrive at consensus on the current facts.

That would provide a sound basis for you to discuss changes.
